Starting in March: Trivia Mafia blows up 17 bars weekly.

Chuck and Sean, the quiet, mild-mannered men behind the 331 Club's infamous Sunday Trivia night, have officially stepped up the Twin Cities trivia game. They have named themselves the Trivia Mafia and amassed a staff of killer trivia hosts to take 17 local bars and restaurants by storm.

Beginning March 3, the duo will take their popular trivia metro-wide, including nearly every Green Mill location within driving distance of the Twin Cities, and even one in Wisconsin. Half Price Books knows a good thing when they see one and have signed on to be our sponsor.

Bios:

Sean McPherson plays bass in Heiruspecs and teaches at McNally Smith College of Music. Chuck Terhark plays in the Como Avenue Jug Band, is an editor at METRO magazine and was once the president of the University of Minnesota Juggling Club. They've also welcomed into the Mafia fold one Martin Devaney, local singer-songwriter extraordinaire and unofficial mayor of St. Paul.

A couple guys from the local music scene double-handedly entertaining 17 bars every week? Sounds like a story to us. Come join us for this fantastic week of trivia.
